

A Continuing Family History

In tracing back the Fieg and Sheehan families, I discovered that most of my ancestors arrived in America from Europe during the first half of the nineteenth century. My Great-Grandfather, Joseph Fieg, was born in Stuttgart, Wuerttemberg, Germany. There he met and married Caroline Louise Texter, the daughter of Ludwig and Caroline Texter. On their honeymoon they traveled to and settled in Cleveland, Ohio. They remained there the rest of their lives and had three children, two that died soon after birth and a third, Francis Joseph. He left school at the age of thirteen to begin working after the death of his father. On April 26, 1911, he married Ida Irene Homegardner, daughter of Lena Ehort and Charles Homegardner. Charles was the son of George and Mary Ann Homegardner. George had been born in Switzerland and had moved with his father, Johannes Heingartner, to Sandusky, Ohio. There he had married Mary Ann Hermann who had come to Ohio from her birthplace in Alsace-Lorraine.

Francis Joseph (commonly called Joseph) and Ida Fieg lived in Cleveland until 1918 when they took their five small children to La Grange, Illinois. A year later a sixth son was born to them there. Joseph was employed by United Screw and Bolt Company both in Cleveland and Chicago until his death. The oldest of their children, Joseph Ignatius, is my father. He has lived all of his life in La Grange since the time he was six, except for a brief period right after his marriage when he worked in Springfield, Illinois. He attended St. Francis Xavier Grammar School, St. Ignatius High School, and Loyola University.

The rest of the Fieg children also live in La Grange. Francis Francis ~~is~~ ^{was} married to Catherine Bielby and they have one daughter, Caroline. Mary Louise ~~is~~ ^{was} married to Frank Kartheiser, and the other three, Martha, Charles, and Louis, live together at home. My Grandfather died March 22, 1951, and My Grandmother on June 28, 1963.

On November 23, 1939, Joseph married Nell Marie Sheehan, thus uniting the two families. The Sheehan family, as ~~one might assume~~, came from Ireland. My Great-Grandfather, William Sheehan, came to America at the age of six with his parents and settled in Burlington, Iowa. There he met Mary Carroll, an Irish girl who had been brought to the United States at the age of two ~~with~~ ^{by} her parents. They had nine children one of them being Robert Emmitt Sheehan. He left home after finishing high school and began working on a bridge construction gang. He moved about frequently and in Plattsmouth, Nebraska, he met and married Adelaide Cora Smith. She was the daughter of Chester, postmaster of Plattsmouth, and Nell Black Smith.
 Nell was the daughter of Doctor George Black and Sara Buttrey Black, who had crossed the Great Plains from Ohio in a covered wagon. Dr. Black had been born in Ohio but Sara Buttrey had come to this country as a child from her home in England.

Robert Emmitt and Adelaide moved frequently in the early years of their marriage. While living in Galesburg, Illinois, two children were born to them. In 1918 the family moved to La Grange and they have remained there ever since. Robert remained with the Burlington Railroad as Superintendent of Bridges until his retirement after fifty years of service.
 Their oldest child, James Chester, married Grace Godfrey and
